

Judith A. Moldenhauer

Associate Professor, Wayne State University, Detroit, Michigan, USA

Judith A. Moldenhauer is an Associate Professor and the Area Coordinator for the Graphic Design program at Wayne State University in Detroit, Michigan, USA. She also serves as Graduate Officer for the Department of Art and Art History there. Her design work lies in the area of "information design" which enables people to easily access and use information by focusing on the organizational and navigational aspects of visual and verbal material. Her design work ranges from exhibition catalogues and posters for the Detroit Institute of Arts to educational materials. She is also a member of the organizing committee for Health Information Design, an international consortium focusing on information design issues in the health care field

DD4me – The Students' Projects

Abstract:

Not yet available